

DISAPPEARED WITH BRIDE'S MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE.

Joseph Scheonman Strangely Missing—Young Woman Fears Violence.

Alarmed over the disappearance of her husband, a handsome young fellow of twenty-one, to whom she has been married only three months, Mrs. Joseph Scheonman, of No. 284 West One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, has appealed to the police. She fears he has met with foul play.

Mrs. Scheonman told the story of her husband's disappearance as follows:

"On Sunday morning last I asked my husband to go to Daniel Cohen, who lives at 223 West One Hundred and Thirty-third street, and ask him to be friendly with us. I had not seen him since my marriage, so I gave my husband our marriage certificate to show."

"When he had not returned at a late hour Sunday I went to my brother's house and asked if he was there. My sister said that he hadn't been there at all. Since then I have been to his place of business, at No. 4 East Fourteenth street, where he was employed by Levy Bros., but he has not been there nor at any place where he was known in a business way."

Mrs. Scheonman said that her husband was known as Joseph Stern better than by his own name. He adopted the name as it was shorter than his own.

"Since our marriage my husband was never away from home over night before," said Mrs. Scheonman, "and we never quarrelled or disagreed."

As soon as she found her husband had disappeared Mrs. Scheonman went to live with her grandmother at 252 West One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, closing

PET PONY BIT BOY.

Terribly Lacerated, Little Fellow Will Bear Marks for Life.

Eleven-year old Harry Dyer, only son of Henry Dyer, a wealthy farmer at Homewood, near Bath, Beach, was badly bitten on the left side of his face this morning in his father's barn when fondling a pet pony.

The pony has been in the family for a number of years and was a special pet of the boy, who alone took care of the animal. This morning while the boy was in the box stall feeding the pony he started to stroke the animal's head. Suddenly and without warning the pony nipped at the boy's face. His left ear was almost torn from his head and the teeth were laid bare. The little fellow will recover, but will be badly disfigured for life.

NO CREPE AND NO MOURNING.

Dr. Levison's Body Cremated Without Ceremony.

The body of Dr. Hugo A. Levison was cremated this forenoon at the Fresh Pond crematory. There were no funeral services either at the home of the dead man's mother, No. 41 West Thirty-fifth street, nor at the crematory. During the time the body was in the house there was no crepe on the door and no outward signs of mourning. No flowers were placed on the coffin and no tokens of grief were shown.

Dr. Levison was born in Alton, Germany, twenty-four years ago, of naturalized American parents, and did not come to this country until he was nineteen years old. His father, Louis Levison, President of the California Jewelry Company, of San Francisco, was one of the original stockholders in the first crematory in the world, the Crematory Society of San Francisco.

The son predicted that Germany would be the first government in Europe to make incineration compulsory, which he believed would be accomplished within the next few years.

Levison at the time of his death was a member of the Vanderbilt Clinic of the Outdoor Poor Department of Roosevelt Hospital and on the staff of the West Side German Dispensary.

BABE SCALDED TO DEATH.

Johnnie Senka Fell into a Tub of Hot Water.

Little Johnnie Senka, of No. 31 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street, could just talk. He sat in a high chair watching the steam rise in clouds from a little tub full of scalding water which his mother had set beside him on the floor while she washed.

The child, who was a little over four years old, prattled about the steam and waved his chubby hands in it. His mother left the room for a moment. The next instant she heard a scream and a splash. Her little boy had fallen head foremost into the tub of water.

Before she could reach him he was fatally and frightfully scalded about the head, breast and arms.

He died early today while Dr. Frank, of Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Eighteenth street, was trying to relieve his agony.

WAIFS SURE SIGN OF SPRING.

The police on duty at Headquarters last night said it was an easy matter to tell that warm weather was coming by the number of lost children taken to Headquarters during the day.

They said that no less than sixteen children, fifteen of them boys, had been picked up as lost during the day. This was twice the usual number. Fourteen of the party were claimed.

The one girl among the lot was Rosa Lowery, five years old, of No. 34 East Fourth street, who, the police say, gets lost on an average of three times a week.

WOMEN HURT ON THE BRIDGE.

Trolley Cars Come Together with Great Force.

When travel was at its height on the Brooklyn Bridge this morning car 2196 of the Vanderbilt avenue line, coming from Brooklyn and crowded to the limit, crashed into a car of the Fulton street line near the middle of the span. Several of the passengers in the Vanderbilt avenue car, who were standing, were thrown heavily to the floor, and two of them, Mrs. Hays Dreyer, forty years old, of No. 282 Watkins street, Brownsville, and Annie Rogers, eighteen years old, a telephone operator of Sullivan avenue and Ames street, East New York, were severely shocked.

Ambulance Surgeon Nelson, of the Hudson Relief, who attended them, said that Mrs. Dreyer was suffering from shock and contusions about the abdomen and arms.

Mrs. Rogers, who fainted away and was unconscious for nearly half an hour, was injured about the hips and shoulders.

No arrests were made and the motor-men were not detained.

They explained to the police that the Vanderbilt car had got beyond control just as the Fulton street car snaked up its speed.

The cars were severely damaged.
